Political Emotions, by Martha C. Nussbaum, makes an argument for the necessity of emotion in a stable, sustainable liberal society. Her study focuses on how the emotions of love and devotion towards the basic principles of a liberal political culture are essential to ensure the efficacy of those ideals. Nussbaum attempts to reconcile the notions of stability and liberal freedom to discover a middle ground in which the state can encourage benevolent political emotions without abandoning the ...

Political Emotions: Why Love Matters for Justice, by Martha Nussbaum. Geraldine Van Bueren lauds a plea to put our passions to work in building a more just society. It is wrongly assumed that only oppressive societies benefit from cultivating public emotions. Yet orators, including Martin Luther King and Mahatma Gandhi, understood the need to reach out and inspire strong emotions in seeking to overcome unacceptable inequalities.
